Designed for the way today's busy executives and thought leaders live, THE WEEK curates over a thousand media sources from around the world to offer a true global and balanced perspective on the issues today-all in a concise, readable package. Inspired by the daily briefing created for the U.S. President, The Week distills the best in domestic and international commentary, and the latest developments in business, health, science, technology, the arts, culture, consumer products and travel. THE WEEK is No.1 in circulation growth. In fact, according to The New York Times, THE WEEK and The Economist are the only two publications in the category to make "strong gains" in circulation.
